

Ancient Egypt was basically a long, narrow country that centered around the Nile. The dotted lines on this page loosely indicate its borders.

Draw on this map where you think these things were:

- Upper Egypt
- Lower Egypt (hint: think about which is the 'upper' and 'lower' end of a river.)
- The pyramids (hint: what are pyramids made of?)
- Border forts (hint: these were to keep enemies from other countries out)
- The red lands
- The black lands (hint: these lands were the two types of physical terrain in Ancient Egypt given their name because of the colour of their soil)
- Memphis - the capital of Ancient Egypt during the time of the pyramids (hint: think about where the pyramids were built)
